

THE PLACES

Our Favorite Resorts in New York For a Last-Minute Getaway

Everything you want, everything you need, within a couple of hours.

BY NOAH KAUFMAN
July 27, 2020

Many New Yorkers have, for the most part, been sequestered in their apartments for several months as much of the city shut down due to COVID-19 (and if you've ever seen a New York City apartment, you know that means tight quarters). A hotel stay where you can get away and not think about cooking your own meals, making your own bed, or cleaning your own bathroom—even just for a weekend—might be the greatest gift you can give yourself right now. All around New York there are magical places to travel: the wide beaches and world-class surfing of Montauk, the charming lakes in the Adirondacks, and the modernized mountain houses of the Catskills. Here are the best resorts in New York for a getaway you can take now.

All listings featured on Condé Nast Traveler are independently selected by our editors. If you book something through our links, we may earn an affiliate commission.

Long Island

Courtesy Shou Sugi Ban House

Shou Sugi Ban House - Water Mill, New York

A considered wellness retreat that feels a world away from the often status-driven outings at the Hamptons, Shou Sugi Ban House commands relaxation as soon as you enter. Morning yoga followed by spa treatments and some time in a deep wooden soaking tub will gently ease you away from the city. Combine that with meals from one of the co-founders of Noma, and you might never want to have to go back.

Book Now: From $1,250 a night at shousugibanhouse.com