The 13 Most Luxurious Hotel Bathrooms in the World

Better grab that "Do Not Disturb" sign now.

There are many things that can help a hotel rise above the pack, whether it's an amazing in-house restaurant or an architecturally stunning pool. But we focus on one area in particular when it comes to measuring a property's luxury factor: the bathroom.

Once relegated to rooms you only ventured into when absolutely necessary, hotel bathrooms (the good ones, at least) now serve as the ultimate status symbol—a chance for a property to really show off its design chops and amenity-laden sensibilities. Rain shower heads and double sinks? So 20 years ago. The bathrooms we're talking about boast suspended bathtubs, en suite saunas, private art collections, and views that could break any Instagram algorithm.

From Brazil to Tokyo, here are our picks for the world's most luxurious hotel bathrooms.

Shou Sugi Ban House, Water Mill, New York

Ever since it opened in 2019, Shou Sugi Ban House has given us ample reason to visit the Hamptons again and again. The incredibly chic wellness retreat is zen personified, with Buddha statues greeting you at the front gate, steaming bowls of congee for breakfast, and 13 standalone villas with Japanese bath products and wooden soak tubs. Each bathroom is the kind of place you could easily spend a few lazy afternoon hours in.
